

work. Only after an examination do the mechanics and engineers receive permission to look after the relevant type of aircraft. If our passengers always reach their destinations quickly and comfortably, this is also largely due to the knowledge, skills and the careful work of our staff in the maintenance department.

